WHAT IS FORCED ORGAN HARVESTING IN CHINA?

Killing a healthy person for their organs, so that those organs can be sold to recipients

THE PROCESS

1. The Chinese Government imprisons innocent people for their beliefs or ethnicity

2. Victims undergo chest x-rays, ultrasounds and blood tests in prisons, hospitals and detention centres

3. A recipient pays for an organ to be made available

4. A victim who is the best match is killed, and their organs are extracted for transplantation
Over 12 months, the China Tribunal, chaired by Sir Geoffrey Nice QC, assessed all available evidence and concluded that:

“Forced organ harvesting has been committed for years throughout China on a significant scale.”

“Falun Gong practitioners have been one - and probably the main - Source of organ supply.”

“The vulnerability of the Uyghurs to being used as a bank of organs is also obvious.”

MULTIPLE LINES OF EVIDENCE INCLUDE:

- Telephone investigations to Chinese transplant specialists confirming extremely short waiting times to receive organs, sometimes 2-4 weeks, with Falun Gong organs also available

- Personal testimony of relatives of the deceased victims and fellow internees

- Chinese data showing more transplant operations each year than officially claimed

- A statistical analysis showing that current official Chinese organ donation data has been manipulated and does not represent the real numbers

- Official Chinese Communist Party documents of policy and practices

- Websites advertising transplant services to foreigners, including heart transplants

- Forced medical tests of Falun Gong practitioners and Uyghurs, including CT scans, x-rays, and ultrasounds

WHAT IS FORCED ORGAN HARVESTING IN CHINA?

Most Countries: Ethical Matching

Most countries have a voluntary organ donation system.

Recipients wait for an organ to become available.

When a donor dies, the best matched person on the waiting list is rushed to hospital to receive their transplant.

Ethically selected recipients (no payment)

100% Voluntary donors

China: Unethical Reverse Matching

Paying recipients

Short “waiting” time 2 - 4 weeks

Recipients pay for an organ to be made available.

A prisoner of conscience, who is the best match for the paying recipient, is chosen from a large pool of detainees.

The prisoner is killed and their organs extracted for transplantation.

Transplants for organs such as hearts, livers and kidneys are scheduled in advance and performed in a matter of weeks.

Perpetrator - the Chinese Communist Party.
Clinical organ transplantation began in China. The first recorded case of organ harvesting from a prisoner of conscience took place in 1978.

The Chinese Communist Party began its persecution of the Buddhist qigong practice of Falun Gong with millions of people put into prisons and labour camps.

HUMAN RIGHTS WATCH REPORT
“Political offenders and other non-violent criminals” were being used as sources for organs.

Chinese doctors participated in “pre-execution medical tests” and matching of prisoners with recipients, “often on a first-paid, first-served basis”.

Executions were deliberately mishandled to ensure that prisoners were “not yet dead when their organs were removed”.

The number of transplants and transplant centers began to grow exponentially.

The number of liver transplants in 2000 reached 10 times that of 1999. In 2005, the number tripled further.

Transplant Surgeon

Independent investigations began showing far more transplants taking place than officially claimed. Organs taken from death-row prisoners do not account for the total number of transplants performed in China.

A voluntary donation system was not established until 2014. This system lacks transparency and investigations show donation figures have been falsified.

The CHINA TRIBUNAL concluded:
“Forced organ harvesting has been committed for years throughout China on a significant scale.”

“Falun Gong practitioners have been one - and probably the main - source of organ supply.”
